EDGEMONT SOLD TO LOCAL MEN

H. V. Bright and Henry Damerel Close Deal for Property of J. B. Coulston at La Verne, Adjoining Their Present Mesa Property—Consideration Is $100,000.

Sixty-seven acres of bearing citrus orchard, high up on the mesa above La Verne, have been added this week to the holdings of H. V. Bright and Henry Damerel. The consideration accepted by the owner, J. B. Coulston, president of the First National Bank of Pasadena, is announced as $100,000.

The property adjoins the mesa property, known as the "Reyvernel," owned by Mr. Damerel, Mr. Bright, Mrs. Alice Leisure, and Dr. A. R. Brown, the two latter of Los Angeles. The Coulston holdings have been known as the Edgemont ranch. The two properties will be worked and handled together.

Mr. Bright and Mr. Damerel said this week that the newly-acquired property has an exceptionally good water right, both of gravity water from the San Dimas canyon, at the mouth of which the property is situated, and also from a pumping system.

The acreage is planted fifty per cent to Valencia and the remaining half about equally to Washington navels and lemons. In the same block there is also the 66½ acres of highly improved property belonging to B. D. Gray, brother-in-law of Mr. Bright, the purchase of which was announced recently. The fruit from these properties will be packed and shipped together under special brands.

A CORRECTION.

In the account last week of the sale of the Bright-Damerel grove of twenty acres known as Valencia Park on Rowland avenue, the price paid by the buyer, John W. Wright of Pomona, was erroneously printed as $30,000. The correct figure is $100,000.

Steam Power Replaced By Gas and Electricity

The question of power and fuel for the various pumping plants of the Covina district is one that has been receiving the earnest attention of the district for several months.

La Puente Co-operative Water company, the largest pumping plant in the West Covina district, has installed two 150 horse-power electric motors at a cost of $3000. The power will be supplied by the Southern California Edison Company. The officers of the corporation state that these motors have been installed as an experiment, based on figures relative to cost of operating furnished by the power company. They will still maintain their steam plant intact.

The Covina Irrigating Company has entered into a contract with the Southern Counties Gas Company to furnish fuel for their large pumping plant on the San Bernardino road, near Baldwin Park. The gas corporation will extend their mains on the San Bernardino road to supply this new service.

Death in Kansas City of Former Covina Woman

The death occurred on Saturday of Anna Reynolds Taylor, wife of Attorney James A. Taylor of Kansas City, Missouri, following an illness of three weeks of influenza-pneumonia.

Mrs. Taylor was the youngest daughter of Mrs. Harriett Reynolds of Vincent avenue, and spent most of her summers with her mother in Covina. She was a member of the Monday Afternoon Club, and of the Covina Christian church, and was active among the young people of the city before going to make her home in Kansas City after her marriage. Besides her husband she leaves two little daughters, Jane, aged 7, and Harriett, aged 5.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the family residence in Kansas City and the remains laid to rest there.

FRED MIDDAGH MARRIES GIRL AT WESTMORELAND

Mr. Fred Middagh surprised his many friends in Covina last Friday when he appeared with his bride, formerly Miss Gladys Bannister. They spent several days in Covina visiting his mother, Mrs. A. E. Middagh, and sister, Miss Pearl Middagh. The wedding occurred on Thursday of last week at Westmoreland, Imperial valley, where the groom is manager of the Kerkhoff-Cuzner Lumber Company's yard at that point.

Loan Committee Makes Last Appeal for Bonds

This is our last appeal to you to BUY VICTORY BONDS. We have given you a chance to voluntarily come in and do your share in putting Covina over the top, and here is how you have responded:

Last week was honor week. There were actually 307 individual subscriptions, amounting to $83,950, and this week about thirty subscribers, bringing the grand total up to date of $90,000, a little over one-half of our allotment, which was $160,450.

The above are actual and correct figures. There were 1260 individual subscribers in the fourth loan, and up to date only a little over one-fourth have subscribed.

Our committee workers are soliciting this week and their reports are very discouraging. There are over 800 people in this community who subscribed during the fourth loan, many of them laboring people that have worked every day for the past year at wages they never even dreamed of before, and who could easily take out one $50 bond, and many growers who have had the best year in the history of their business, who are going on the principle of "Letting George do it." This is not a community spirit that is going to put Covina over the top. If the community is going to save itself some mighty undesirable advertising, it means that every man and woman here has got to take out bonds—even if not more than one bond. We ask for it in the name of our splendid district. Many towns around us have gone over the top already, and here in Covina we are lagging behind; not because we are not just as prosperous, but owing to the indifferent attitude of our people. It is inconceivable that there should be one family in this district who would not have at least enough legal pride in the place they live—leaving out of consideration their public duty to take at least $50 to $100 worth of bonds.

Justify yourselves with the money to do this lying idle down there in the banks? How can you justify yourselves in the eyes of this community is past our understanding.

We have tried to bring this matter before you in sufficient time so that you could prepare yourselves, and we have done our best to show you the necessity of co-operative work if Covina was to go over the top. If Covina fails the responsibility rests with you. Can you afford to assume this liability? Better think it over and go to your bank and take out Victory bonds, and more if you have already taken some.

Covina Victory Loan Committee,
C. E. Crawford, Sec'y.

Gas Company Reports Increase in Business

The local manager of the Southern Counties Gas Company, Mr. Morey, reports that the corporation's books at the close of business yesterday showed an increase in Covina of 224 new services over the corresponding date of last year. This is a very healthy growth, which the management believes can largely be attributed to the very general satisfaction which the natural gas is giving the consumers.

Pomona Man Buys Lee's Cash Grocery

A. C. Slykhous, a practical business man of Pomona, who came to that neighboring city eight years ago from Topeka, Kansas, is the purchaser this week of the grocery business of Mr. Charles Lee, known as Lee's Cash Grocery, on Citrus avenue.

Mr. Lee has been doing a very good business in this location for the past two years. He stated yesterday that he does not intend to leave Covina, but will take a rest from business for a while.

Mr. Slykhous will be assisted in the store by his wife, and will make a number of changes and improvements, he announced yesterday.

*Fourteen additional carloads shipped by truck to Los Angeles.

Average price received, with packing and shipping charges deducted, is $2.80, which makes a total return of $1,642,872.

The summer Valencia crop is estimated at 1,200 carloads.

The fruit shipments as indicated above in the tabulation show what is undoubtedly the most prosperous season in the history of the Washington navel orange in this valley.

The Charter Oak district, which was entirely free from any cold weather damage of last December, will average just about three dollars a box to the grower, with packing and shipping charges deducted. Some packing houses in the Covina district will also average as high as three dollars. Other houses, packing fruit that had a larger percentage of damage from low temperatures, will lower the average somewhat. The average price of $3.80 net to the grower, with all packing and shipping charges paid, is the figure set by the Covina Fruit Exchange. This average is contingent upon a strong market during the next few weeks, when the fruit now enroute is being sold.

The cultural costs, such as fertilization, fumigation, pruning, irrigating, picking and other general care, have increased a little better than forty per cent in the past three years, the greater increase being added in the past two years. This figure is supplied by the managers of local associations. Where a team was hired for five dollars a day several years ago, it now costs eight dollars. All manual labor has increased in ratio, while all material used in producing a crop has advanced from fifty per cent to one hundred per cent in most cases.

This increased cultural cost does not, however, alter the fact that the rancher or grower has made very good money out of the naval crop this year in the Covina valley. When conditions were different a number of years ago the "dollar net" naval was considered to be a profitable business. Many growers of long experience said that good money would be made from year to year on navels if a dollar a box could be obtained. With a net return of $2.80, the grower cannot complain of a poor season this year.

It is a fact that some growers have not produced any better money return this year than in years past. This is due to the very human fact that the groves have not been properly cared for. If the groves are not properly fumigated and fertilized, with an intelligent upkeep in all phases, it will not show a profit in good years any more than in bad years, because the increased cost in production as relating to fixed cultural charges will eat up the returns, even when $2.80 is received. The grower who has spent an average of $150 to the acre for cultural preparation for a crop is the grower who this year has made a wad of money. The other fellow who may have tried to skip a fumigation or to stilt the grove on water and fertilization, has not made anything this year, and the chances are good that he went into the hole.

There are several gratifying things about the return of good profits this year. The most fundamental one is that it is a return to the farmer, and not to the speculator. This fact is due to the organizations of farmers into selling concerns. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange and the Mutual Orange Distributors have made it possible for the money to actually return to the rancher, where it belongs. With prosperity in the hands of the rancher, the distribution of the prosperity is assured in the community. The tiller of the soil makes the community prosperous.

It is also a fact that the good returns will be reflected in the building of better and more modern packing establishments, as already announced by one organization, the Covina Citrus Association, which will spend $150,000 this summer for new packing buildings and a pre-cooling plant. It means a very general prosperity through the town, as indicated by the number of residences planned and already in the process of building.

From the fine returns of the past two years the Covina valley has heavily invested in all the government bond issues, oversubscribing them all, as will be a fact by the present bond issue. It has always responded from one hundred and fifty to two hundred per cent over the top for every philanthropic war drive, and will continue to do so as long as the need lasts.

The growers are paying exceptionally good wages, thus sharing the profits with the entire community and spreading the prosperity throughout the cities and towns of the San Gabriel valley.

Ellen Beach Yaw sang for the students on Wednesday afternoon. She gave the following numbers: "When Golia Sings" (Moore); "Alpine Pastoral" (Bozzi-Pecora); "Lingering, Lonely Rose" (Sibella); "Miss Mariner" (Bartlett); "Red, Red Rose" (Cotton); "The Skylark" (Ellen Beach Yaw); "The Laughing Song" (Auber); "The Robin" (Neidinger). A week ago Thursday the chemistry class visited the ice plant at Azusa to study the process of making artificial ice. The general science class was scheduled to go to Laguna Beach Saturday to procure specimens of sea plants and to study plant and animal life of the sea in its native surroundings, but on account of the rain the trip was postponed. Tomorrow the chemistry class will visit the Los Angeles soap works and also the Los Angeles creamery.

Thursday of last week the Covina boys' tennis team played Franklin on our courts. Franklin won 17 to 0. This afternoon the boys' tennis team is to play South Pasadena, and yesterday the girls' tennis team was scheduled to play them.

This afternoon the Covina baseball team will play the third league game with South Pasadena. The league game with Franklin high school last Friday turned out to be a victory for Franklin, the score being 6 to 0 in their favor.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Gee of Long Beach read to the students, and after school she coached the characters of the play in some of the finer details. All of the class, athletic, and music department pictures have now been taken, and all of the seniors, Cardinal staff, debaters, and student body officers have had their pictures taken, and they soon will be ready to be engraved for the Cardinal.

MOVEMENT FOR HOME BUILDING IS SPREADING

The home building movement is stirring up many cities throughout Southern California. In Whittier, Editor Kennedy of the Whittier News is chairman of the committee pushing the effort, and today there are over one hundred applications for houses in that city, with over seventy in course of construction. Whittier and many of the other cities and rural towns of California are thoroughly aroused to the situation.

In many of the larger cities regular home building companies are being organized to build houses according to the ideas of the people who are to own the places. These companies have architects and furnish estimates. In Imperial valley prominent citizens are advocating similar action, with J. L. Travers, president of the El Centro chamber of commerce, in active charge of the movement.

Covina is no exception to the other cities of Southern California. Not a day passes but what the real estate offices receive applications for homes. There is not an empty house in the town and the time is ripe for the building of a number of modern residences. The demand for this class of property is such that they would undoubtedly be sold before completion.

MODERN BARN FOR THE SMALL FARM

Equipment Now Available Removes Much Irksome Toil.

DIRT NO LONGER TOLERATED

Plans Show Stables for Cows and Horses That Can Be Kept Clean With Little Trouble.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, Inc., 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose three-cent stamp for reply.

The word "barn" brings to the mind of everyone who lived on the farm more than ten years ago a building in which the first and last work of the day was performed amid a variety of odors and in partial or total darkness. But a barn to the modern business farmer means a clean, well-lighted and ventilated home for his live stock—a place in which the work of caring for the animals can be performed with comparative comfort and in much less time than it formerly took.

Barn construction has made greater progress than building of any other sort. And a great deal of this progress has been brought about by the in-their backs to the sun. So this has become an accepted practice in barn planning.

Through the center of the barn runs the feed alley, the mangers being on either side. Contrast this with the old system of having to carry feed around the horse or cow to the manger built against the wall. On either side of the barn is a litter alley, usually provided with a carrier running on an overhead track. While this barn is only 30 by 40 feet the same plan can be used on a larger barn, with the exception that the feed alley will be made wide enough so that a wagon may be driven through it, and when larger numbers of cows are kept a silo will be added.

In the floor plan that accompanies the perspective of the barn it will be noticed that the foul air flues are placed in the walls and lead to the ventilator on the ridge. These flues follow the walls and roof, thus making the mow space clear of obstructions.

Hanging the barn doors has engaged the attention of the manufacturers of barn equipment during the last few years and nowadays they are so hung that they open as easily as the door in a home. An enclosed track, weather and bird proof, is put over the door and ball-bearing wheels follow it.

Care in Planning Necessary.
Competent builders in every community now are familiar with modern barn construction. They know how the barn should be built so that the greatest profit may be made from the live stock it houses. The prospective barn builder should exercise as much care in planning this building as he would in erecting a home, for on the plan depends whether or not he conducts his live stock business in the most efficient way.

This is to be a "Build a Building" year. The need for farm buildings is vestigations made at the state experiment stations and the agricultural colleges. These investigations have proven that a cow or a horse, or even a hog, must have a clean, well-lighted place in which fresh air can circulate freely in order to be healthy and in consequence as productive as possible.

As a result, the barns that are now erected are planned so that these features are included. Lack of water meant less milk, so running water is now carried to each stall; a cold barn had the additional effect of requiring a greater amount of feed, in order that the animal might be kept warm; lack of sunshine meant that the barn was a breeding place for all sorts of disas great as the need for homes. With wheat at $2.26 a bushel and other grains in proportion, none of them will be wasted. And it is sheer waste to house the live stock in poorly constructed barns, where they will require a greater amount of feed in the shape of feed than they would in a tight barn, where water is available. There is no place where work can be so lightened on the farm as in the barn.

In considering the care of live stock, the silo should be also considered. One-third of the feed value of the corn is in the stalk. To allow this feed to be lost is another waste that should be eliminated. The silo provides the live stock with fresh nourishing food ease germs, sunshine being nature's greatest germicide. Shown these facts the modern business farmer at once decided that sick animals were bad investments, so he accepted the modern way of housing his animals.

Good Barn for Average Farm.
On the average farm, however, not such a great number of live stock are kept as to require a large barn. The building shown in the accompanying illustration is designed to house four horses and seven cows and to provide storage space for their winter's supply of feed. This gambrel-roofed barn will meet the requirements of a majority of farmers. The floor plan shows how the stalls are placed in the two compartments. It now being required in many states that milk-producing cows be separated by a closed wall from the horse barn, as the ammonia fumes in the latter contaminate the milk.

The animals all face in, allowing the sunshine from the windows to strike the litter alley and gutter, and to keep the bright light out of the eyes of the cows and horses. It was observed by students of live stock that both cows and horses in the pasture always turn throughout the several months they are in the barn and goes a long way toward solving the problem of feed. Erecting such a barn as has been here described is good business for the farmer. It will save him labor, and labor is costly. It will give him increased profits in both money and satisfaction.

Quite Happy.
Through the wild ways of her good-for-nothing husband, a hardworking charwoman had to remove to a little two-roomed cottage, where there was scarcely space to squeeze without shaking the ornaments from the mantelpiece.

"It's hard lines for you to be brought down like this, after what you've been accustomed to," said a sympathetic neighbor. "I don't doubt you feel very miserable, Mrs. Jones."

"No, I don't," the charwoman stoutly denied. "I'm happier here by a long way than I used to be in the old place. For one thing, when my husband comes home in a brute of a temper, he can't throw me down the cellar steps, as he used to do, 'cos there ain't none now." —Pearson's Weekly.

Y. M. C. A. Worker Writes From France

Base Hospital No. 120,
Tours, France, March 23.

Dear Home Folks:

If all the letters I've planned to you could get on paper, I know they'd cover the bare pine walls of this hospital. My, how I wish I could talk to you instead of writing this morning! It's Sunday, and I'm sure Mr. Foreman or Mr. Cowgill would let me have a few minutes, wouldn't they? or may be Mr. Utter!

You don't know, all you Covina folks, how often your faces have passed before me in this last month. Perhaps, since this heading looks pretty gruesome, I had best begin at the "now" and work back. I have been very ill in this hospital nearly a month. A few of you who knew me best warned me against just what happened. "I took it too hard." More times than I can count I have remembered the kind advice given to me at that last school board meeting I attended. I thought nothing could overthrow me. But this is France. No one who is not here can know the need of our work here.

Danger and death spur men to their highest ideals. Few fell on account of weakness during the fighting time, but now the inspiration is gone. The men are sent hither and yon, in casual convoys, not knowing why or where. They don't get their mail for months at a time. They don't get their pay for longer than that. They are blue; they are homesick. It is cold, and rains without ceasing. The mud is simply beyond description.

I am at Rannes "Y" hut, a big baliwick that would cover a town lot—just inside the guard at Rannes barracks, Tours. There are from 7000 to 8000 men in Rannes and the adjoining barracks. It is headquarters S. O. S. center. Miles and miles of army red tape are wound and unwound by soldiers pressed into official service, who were erstwhile excellent mechanics. In this camp I think there are detachments of every known branch of army, navy, and marine service.

The winter has been a hard one. The "flu" has taken its awful toll daily. I have followed the marine band playing Chopin's funeral march and heard taps over open graves—always in the rain—until my heart was dead.

What wonder that the boys, dropped from the tenacious excitement into this comparative idleness, are desperate. "I want to go home!" we hear a thousand times a day. And there are so many temptations for them that you people can never understand. I would not either if I had not been here.

Now my particular job is "hut mother." Three, sometimes four, other girls serve hot chocolate and jam sandwiches. I am out in the hut with the boys all the time. There are never less than 100 around the big stores and writing desks, and often we are sheltering over a thousand. I am mother or sister to the whole bunch. I think I know the whole 7000, and when I go down the Rue Nationale I answer more salutes than the general.

I hear their troubles, I look at the pictures of their mothers, sweethearts, wives and babies. When I say I hear their troubles I mean real troubles—things that would make the failure of an orange crop look like a joke. I have received confessions of everything from murder down, and I am always supposed to have an answer for everything, and never to stop smiling. I write letters home for them to assume mother that the boy is fine, and "the girl" that he's still crazy about her. When heads go down in hands and the cough is deep and rasping—there's my job! And buttons, and chevrons—I've sewed on thousands.

Well, I kept that going at a pretty good rate for two months, about twelve hours a day, seven days in the week. And then the awful cough I had been bluffing, took a turn for flu and got mixed up with bronchitis, and "nuff said." I have been one pretty sick warrior for just about a month. Most of this letter in fact has been written lying down pretty flat. I am telling you all this to explain to you, good friends, why I have not answered your letters, which were more enjoyed than you will ever know. Some day I will surely write to all of you.

But let me say right now, I am glad I came. I will see very little of France. I have had some hard experiences. But I know I have helped just a little. I know I will be a bigger, kinder, broader-minded woman when I come back to you than when I came away.

And as for being a good American, oh boy! There isn't an A. E. F. that does not love the very sound of U. S. A. more than he or she ever dreamed of before. We'll probably "crab" the government and each other and everything else, but that's the army. We sure do love our home land! But oh, dear people, try to be patient with us when we get home!

"Home! I have seen broad shoulders and grizzled cheeks wet just at the name of it. And then do they sob and quote poetry? Not on your life! They cuss like pirates and tear out in the rain and get the flu or are lured in by pretty Mademoiselles or fill up on vin blanc. And of the three evils, it's thirty-three and one-third per cent of each. I don't count the cussing. As a boy said to me yesterday, "God knows I don't mean it when I use His name that way." They will get over it, but I, too, believe "God knows."

I know you are all wondering why I do not write about the big things of this situation. I can't; I'm too near it. You probably know a lot more about the general condition of things than I do. I know that we of the A. E. F. (and I use that expression with humble pride) are not praying for mercy on Germany, and that we want the thing settled and well settled—and we want to get these boys home! The American soldier is the finest handiwork that God ever made, and when he gets through being a soldier he is going to be a much more wonderful man than before. True, war has broken a few. It had to be. They are human. But it has made more of them.

I have had very little to do with the officers. My work has been with the enlisted men. There are some wonderful men in high places over here. But it takes more than a Sam Brown belt or even spurs to prove the timber of a man. And it was the ordinary (?) "doughboy" that won the glory that America drew in the finish. I do not care if he didn't even get "1st cl" attached to his signature, if he came through that shell of battle, on earth or in air or sea, still the captain of his own soul, take off your hat to him! And to the man who came with just as much valor, just as much courage, but didn't get any further than an S. O. S. station, didn't get even in sound of the danger, give him praise, for it was not his fault that he did not go over the top, and "believe me," he's probably served his country by sleeping in worse places and wading in worse mud than you ever dreamed of—to say nothing of the corn Willie, "gold fish" and stewed celery!

And like any other soldier who has been cared for by an army nurse, who has known of her courage and endurance under all conditions, I say she can never receive appreciation to begin to be commensurate with her valor.

Generalizations are always unsafe. No two of us will have the same opinion of France, England, or the war. If we are in the part of France where I have spent most of my time, we will no doubt agree on the weather.

Another great question that fills the mind of the soldier is his job. A good many are worrying about that. But surely no employer will refuse a man his old job when he gets back from an errand like this. I am strongly rooting

What Would We Do Without Banks?

The biggest factor of the business outlook at any given moment is the subtle factor called "confidence." When business men have courage, and the producing elements get out and produce to their capacity, which keeps everybody busy earning money. City and county banks were never working in such close touch with the farmers and wage earners nor so closely identified with community service.

The keynote of confidence is that there is now in existence, tried out in the furnace of war, the great federal reserve banking system. Before this organization was created, the United States suffered from business depressions about every decade or a little oftener.

The bank laws were so rigid that a perfectly sound and solvent business could be wrecked merely by the lack of ready money. This weakness in the financial structure has now been removed by legislation that makes possible the massing of reserves to protect every solvent business.

Thus the principal cause for the old periodical panics has been removed. The country still faces the peril of Bolshevism. But the school-educated masses will not be fooled by the follies that have deluded poor, blind Russia.

So the prudent and courageous enterprise, with justice to all elements of the working community, all clouds are evaporating in the clear sunshine of American optimism.

Covina is fortunate in having strong institutions which are liberal to a degree in promoting all legitimate local enterprises. The heavy deposits carried by these institutions are a healthy reflection of the prevailing prosperity of the district.

The Argus cannot too strongly urge you to patronize Covina's banks, for it is these institutions that will stand behind you in promoting your personal and community interests.

BISHOP OF LOS ANGELES

OFFICIATES AT CONFIRMATION

A large and interested congregation was present at Holy Trinity church on Tuesday evening, when the rite of confirmation was administered to a class of six. The service was preceded by the baptism of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon Maddock of Duarte. The Rt. Rev. J. H. Johnson, D.D., bishop of Los Angeles, conferred the blessing upon the class and gave a very interesting, practical talk on confirmation. He said: "It was a little surprising that many of the Protestant denominations omitted this rite, it is so plainly scriptural. It is the outward and visible sign of the real presence of the Holy Ghost in his church. Baptism and the holy communion are not only commemorations, but are also the outward and visible sign of the inward and spiritual actual presence of our Lord."

LUTHERAN LADIES HOLD ANNIVERSARY SUPPER

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran church gave a supper last Friday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. John A. Taschner of Arroyo Drive. The husbands and families of the members were the guests of the occasion. The tables were decorated with ferns and roses, with center pieces and napkins to match, and an abundance of good things to eat had been prepared by the ladies. This was the first anniversary of the society, and to show their appreciation of the faithful work of the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. H. O. Michel, during the past year, the society presented her with a purse of ten dollars. The company dispersed at a late hour, voting the occasion a most enjoyable one.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Hall was formerly a member of the hardware firm of Henry Hall of this city. During his comparatively brief business career in Covina the deceased made many friends.

Mr. Hall leaves a sister, Mrs. E. R. Hotchkiss of Binghampton, two nieces, Mrs. Ellis Morse of Binghampton and Mrs. W. E. Henry, and two grand nephews, W. C. Henry of Hollywood and Richard Morse of Binghampton.

LEON RICE IN SECOND CONCERT IN COVINA

The concert which was postponed on account of a severe cold by Leon Rice, the New York tenor, will be given on Thursday, May 8, in the Methodist church. A new program of unusual interest will be given, and the church should be crowded to the doors to hear it. Mr. Rice will feature a number of songs that were written especially for him, and also some of the songs he sang in the camps for the soldiers during the seventy-five concerts he gave, before being overtaken with the Spanish "flu" and pneumonia.—Adv.

CITY TRUSTEES EMPLOY WALNUT LAND MANAGER

The city trustees at their Tuesday meeting employed R. B. Barnes as superintendent of the walnut land on the Puente boulevard which was originally intended for a sewer farm. Mr. Barnes will reside on the property, the city having purchased a residence from the Mary J. Coolman estate, which they will move onto the farm during the coming week. The ranch is planted to walnuts which are now three years old. The city offered to sell the property several months ago, but did not secure a bid which they considered worthy of consideration. They have therefore decided to farm the property.

COMMUNITY SINGING AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

THE EVER DEPENDABLE FORD AT BELLEAU WOODS

(Authorized.) During the bitter fighting in France in September, 1918, when the United States marines took the heart out of the Prussian Guards, and in fact, out of the whole German army, and during the wicked fighting at Belleau Woods and vicinity, some twenty marines captured the little French village of Bour-esches. Scarcely 200 yards beyond lay the German trenches. As the Germans were driven from the village of Bour-esches, their artillery dropped a fierce barrage behind the village to make impossible reinforcements being sent to our soldier boys. Our boys fought until their ammunition was exhausted, their food was gone, and they had no water, and still they held the village, and still the barrage fell about them, when suddenly out of the hell of fire of the barrage a truck broke through, bringing water, food, and munitions. Upon receiving this, our American "war dogs" proceeded to drive the Germans out of the trenches.

It seems to have fallen to a certain American motor car company that here was an opportunity to do some advertising, and so it ran a full page advertisement in the newspapers recounting the above facts, then inserting the following line:

"It was a ——— truck that did this glorious work."

Everybody was glad and rejoiced that American industry came in just at the right time to endorse American courage and heroism.

A manufacturer of another motor truck doubted the statement, and wrote the war department asking if it wasn't one of their trucks that should have received the glory, and was informed by the war department that neither their truck or the truck mentioned in the advertisement was entitled to the glory, but that it was a "Ford" truck that showed up just at that particular time. The latter manufacturer advised us of these facts, and we wrote the war department, and the attached correspondence speaks for itself.

MRS. CARRIE DAVIS DIES AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING

After many years of patient suffering, during which everything to ease her condition was done, Mrs. Carrie Davis, wife of George W. Davis, died on Sunday at her home on Cottage Drive.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Covina Funeral Parlors. The services were in charge of Mrs. W. W. Bennett, a reader of the local Christian Science church. The remains were laid to rest in the Oakdale cemetery.

ABOUT EYESIGHT

Few people neglect an ache or a pain, but many overlook eye troubles, for defects of vision can usually only be found by a skilled optometrist. While an ordinary headache may be but a passing indisposition, all too frequently eyestrain, headache and nervousness are forerunners of serious eye trouble.

Ladies Preparing for Reciprocity Day

Next Tuesday the annual Reciprocity day of the Monday Afternoon club will be held, with delightful plans for a reception at 11 o'clock, luncheon at noon, with a drive and program in the afternoon. Tickets, fifty cents, for members for the luncheon will be on sale at Nash's drug store this week, but none will be obtainable after Saturday evening. The afternoon program is open for all members and will be of unusual interest. Short speeches by the visiting club members will be given immediately after the luncheon.

The beauty of California's April blossoms was noted at the club meeting last Monday for quantities of pale pink roses were most effectively used in festoons and graceful baskets. Mrs. F. Ohaver and Mrs. Irene Doughty had charge of the decorations.

Mrs. W. B. Thorne arranged an attractive musical program, including a group of piano solos by Mrs. George Phillips and three vocal solos by Miss Ida Elder.

In the absence of Mrs. Beebe, the speaker of the afternoon, upon "Community Kitchens," Mrs. C. W. Conan, program chairman, told of the wartime growth and development of the cooperative and government run kitchens, where wholesome and well-cooked foods were cooked and served for the thousands of women working in the munition factories, not only of this country, but of England, France and Germany. Because of the great success of these experiments, both France and England have in the past few months seen a great increase in both the cooperative and financial community kitchen, and in many cities in the east they are being tried with varying success. Mrs. Jessica Hazard, a California expert in dietary matters has made a careful survey of the possibilities and needs of community kitchens on the coast, particularly in Southern California, and is of the opinion that while many would welcome the innovation, such kitchens are not necessary, nor would they be successful financially.

At the meeting it was voted to have three programs in June, on the 2nd, 9th and 16th, since the annual business meeting of the club house corporation is legally fixed for the last Monday in May, which would have been a regular program afternoon.

The club president, Mrs. J. L. Matthews, Mrs. W. P. Nye, Mrs. J. N. Wilson, Mrs. Thomas Trawick and Mrs. G. D. Jennings are arranging to attend the state club convention, to be held at Coronado, during the week of May 12. A week from Monday, May 12, the traveler and lecturer, Kinsley E. Pease, will give his lecture, "Big John Chinaman," when it is hoped that the full membership will be out to hear him.

PRISON REFORM WORKER SPEAKS AT UNION SERVICE

Adjutant Charles Brandon Booth of the Volunteers of America addressed a union service of the memberships of the Baptist, Presbyterian, Christian, and Methodist churches in the Methodist auditorium on Wednesday evening. Mr. Booth is the son of Ballington and Maud Booth, whose successful reform work among the inmates of the numerous penitentiaries of the United States, during the past twenty-five years is well known.

The speaker appealed for the humane treatment of the men while in prison, adequate provision for their wives and families during their incarceration, and upon their release an opportunity to redeem themselves by providing employment at adequate wage.

He paid a tribute to the state of Minnesota in its method of handling the prison problem. In the state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minnesota, there are today 1000 prisoners. These men are well fed, well housed, and employed in useful trades, netting the state each year one-half million dollars in cash profits, in addition to bearing the entire cost of the institution. In California, the speaker said, we have 3500 inmates of San Quentin and Folsom penitentiaries, which are maintained at a cost to the taxpayers of the state of over half a million dollars annually.

Mr. Booth urged that these men should be employed at useful trades, paid a fair wage, from $2 to $3.50 a day, from which at the end of each week the operating cost of these prisons should be deducted, which is now seventy-one cents per day for each inmate, and the balance of each man's earnings sent to his dependent wife and children, the man being required to endorse the check, so that he will have the knowledge that it is his own labor providing maintenance for his family.

Mr. Booth was accompanied by Lt. Colonel Wm. M. Hughes, superintendent of the Maud B. Booth home for boys and girls in Los Angeles.

The Men's League of the Presbyterian church will be entertained at the home of Mr. R. M. Douglass next Monday evening. An interesting program is being arranged.

BIBLE STUDY QUESTIONS.

Gladstone's words are still true that "the old, old story, told in the old, old book, is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind." Discover this for yourself by studying the book. Perhaps the following questions will help. They are based on the first epistle of Peter and were written to hold men steadfast in the face of persecution in the days of the infamous Nero.

Friday: From the first verse learn to whom this letter was addressed. From the second verse learn their spiritual condition. Read 1:3-12. Note that this deals with an inheritance that is coming to every Christian. What three characteristics are mentioned? Note again from whom it is reserved.

Saturday: In 1:13-25 find what is said about "hope," "holiness," "love of the brethren," and "the word of God."

Sunday: Christians are likened to what in 2:13? What are they to desire and why? In 2:4-10 they are likened to a temple. Who is the chief corner stone? Read the rest of the chapter and answer the following questions: How should Christians act toward non-Christians? Why? Toward the government and why? Toward unjust persecution? Who is our great example in these things? Think particularly of the 20th verse. Did you ever think of it in just that way before? Do you receive unmerited suffering in the spirit of this verse? Monday: Read 3:8 and think how fine a place this old world would be if everyone did this. Have you done your part toward making it unamiable? Read 2:9-22, dwelling particularly on verses 15 and 17.

Tuesday: In the fourth chapter is a strong appeal for true Christian living. Read 4:1-11. What will charity (love) do? How should we use any gift that God has given us?

Wednesday: When these words were written persecution was rife. In 4:12-19 how are Christians admonished to think of it? Are people today persecuted for righteousness? How? Re-read carefully verses 3, 16, 19.

Thursday: Read the last chapter and commit to memory the seventh verse.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN ON THE STAGE AT STAR THEATER TONIGHT

ELSIE FERGUSON in 'The Danger Mark'

An ARTCRAFT Picture

Elsie Ferguson, conceded to be the most beautiful woman of today on the American stage or screen, will be seen at the Star theater, tonight and tomorrow, starring in an Artcraft production, "The Danger Mark."

This is a production depicting a girl, beautiful, intellectual, her heart filled with keen sympathy and splendid ideals. Her abode was a luxurious mansion and the things that money could buy were hers for the asking. Her guardians were possessed of a great fear because they knew what her mother and father and grandfather before her had done. Had heredity etched into her subconscious self a desire that had wrought ruin in generations past? The man she loved wondered if she would successfully pass "The Danger Mark."

HUDSON MOTOR CAR CO. TO BUILD 40,000 CARS

"A peep behind the scenes at the almost miraculous industrial progress made in Detroit, the automobile center of the world, during the last few months would amaze the army of buyers who are now impatiently waiting for delivery of their cars," said Harold L. Arnold, Hudson distributor, last week.

At the plant of the Hudson Motor Car Company, for instance, more than 75,000 square feet were added to the million square feet of manufacturing space, in preparation for turning out 40,000 cars, valued at $56,000,000 during the year.

In getting ready for the building of this number of cars, the greatest in the history of the company, masses of supplies of all kinds had to be accumulated so that the production lines could be continuously operated at their highest efficiency. Today the value of material on hand alone is more than $8,000,000. Every square inch of the plant, which covers twenty-six acres, has been filled and the overflow has been stacked in great heaps in the yard.

SOLDIER REPORTED KILLED APPEARS BEFORE FRIENDS

The happy experience of having a friend, given up as dead, appear before them strong and well, has been given to several people since the close of the great war. This was experienced by Mrs. McKay and family of West Badillo street last Sunday, when Mr. Harland Major appeared unannounced at their home. Mr. Major, who is a close friend of Mrs. McKay's son, John McKay, enlisted with him in Company F of the 117th engineers, but who afterward was transferred to the light tank corps, was officially reported killed. Of the six hundred members of this corps, only about one hundred and twenty-five came through the war alive, and the report of his death was believed. In reality he was wounded and is being transferred from one hospital to another his identity was lost, and his friends did not know of his safety until he arrived among them.

TWO LOTS WITH HOUSES WERE SOLD THIS WEEK

Among the realty sales made in the city during the past week is that of the purchase of a house and lot by Smith Padd of Mrs. Aarey A. Poole, situated on First street.

Groover & Clark have sold a house and lot on Dexter street to R. E. Laws. The property was owned by H. B. Seat. The consideration was $1500.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nigg of Long Beach will be guests on Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nigg of East Center street.
